The New High School

ENDORSEMENTS are being sought from local business men and civic clubs this week on a proposal to ask the municipal power and water plant to finance the building of a new senior high school.

As we understand it, the school board feels that if the municipal utility will contribute the cost of the permanent improvement, the school system may continue to function satisfactorily on its present finances.

Hope schools are already a year behind on their budget. The situation has improved slightly within the last year or two, but only so far as current operations are concerned. There is no possibility of building a new high school with out emergency help, we are told.

The method generally used to finance new public buildings is a municipal bond issue. Hope has been fortunate in staying clear of this system, which is supported by a property tax, and by its very nature incurs costly handling charges. The city hall was built without bonds, the municipal power plant absorbing the cost in record time.

The same assistance should be available for the new high school. A municipal utility has a duty besides that of furnishing cheap light and power. It represents a property investment in behalf of the citizens which entitles them to a certain amount of tax relief. The municipal plant is so used at Monroe, Louisiana; and we believe the great majority of the citizens of Hope regard the local plant in the same light. For that reason The Star has supported the Hope plant in its present schedule of rates, which, we are told, will enable the plant to render aid to municipal enterprises that are found worth while.

The value of a modern new high school is widely recognized. The time is coming when the City of Hope will be expected to furnish school facilities for a territory several miles around the actual city boundaries. No consolidation program for the senior high school grades is possible until Hope has established the proper kind of building. The Garland building, which is 22 years old, is obsolete—and its replacement is something for local citizens to be studying this spring.

"Better Homes"

THIS being "Better Homes Week," one unfamiliar with the purpose of those who foster the occasion naturally wonders just what is meant by that elusive expression, "better homes." Better in what respect? Bigger, hence better? Or what?

Scanning the almost endless list of activities which feature celebration of the week we find such as these: A survey of modern homes; a clean-up campaign; a "May Day" program; a demonstration of the value of gas in the rural home, also electric lights, also running water; a reconditioned kitchen and a demonstration garden; model homes with all modern improvements.

And so we read on and on until we find that the Little Rock Public Library will offer a shelf of books appropriate for the modern home and another story tells us that the question of religious training in the home will be among those discussed during the week.

In that delightful book The Great American Band Wagon, Charles Merz says:

"We have been a busy people, and for many years we did not stop to think a great deal of the esthetics of the things we built, as the older sections of our newer cities testify. We built for service, not for art; and if beauty came as an afterthought we achieved it with a few more eaves, an extra porch, some scalloped cornices, a bit of stained glass in the bathroom or a bevy of bay windows."

Now, in a day when beauty plays a part in our dreams of a real home we are beginning to see something more than mere utility. Hence, we are pursuing romance, turning to our architects with pleas for something "artistic."

That is the physical home. What of the spiritual home, that is, the life that is led in that home by the family and the friends of the family? What of the home in which there are what Mr. Brisbane calls "two-car" families? Can we make them "better" homes or are they good enough as they are? "At least one woman in Arkansas thinks there is room for improvement. She says: "One of the most serious evils of the present time is the lack of parental authority, thus causing untold misery and mischief to the whole community. We may build palaces, mass great fortunes, pile up luxuries all about us, provide for satisfaction of every desire, but as we sit amid these luxuries and await the steps of an unsaved son or daughter happiness is far from our hearts and homes."

Can we live fuller lives by adding "a few more eaves, an extra porch, some scalloped cornices," or by adding a shelf of books and a bit of religious training? The answer to that question apparently depends upon the individual family.—Arkansas Democrat.

A Modern Canute

WASHINGTON—Prohibition referenda are going to be talked about a lot more than they ever were before. Proposals for national and state votes on the wet-dry issue will be made with increasing confidence and persistence by the wets as they wage what looks like the first real organized general campaign against the dry laws.

The dries are not going to like that at all, for they have nothing to gain by referenda. They are going to oppose them in the first place, and whenever there are referenda they will say that the votes don't mean anything. As for the proposal for a national referendum they will argue that there is no excuse for it. Whether these arguments are true or not all depends on the way you look at the issue itself.

Confident for First Time

The wets are full of hope. Privately, for years many of them have not been the least bit confident that a national referendum on prohibition would give them a majority. Some admitted that they were very confident about a very large minority. But neither side was ever very confident about what would happen, despite public statements from both. Today it's different and before long the wets probably will be howling for a national vote in union. They may be making a mistake about popular sentiment, but they must be shown.

The Literary Digest's poll, indicating something like a 3 to 1 sentiment against the existing prohibition laws, is the largest factor in their enthusiasm. Better organization, larger finances and greater wet vociferousness are factors alien. The Crusaders, new wet organization, start advertising for members in the most widely circulated magazines and Senator Tydings of Maryland publicly wagers that he can buy a drink in any town in the United States.

Wet candidates for office roar all over the land. Wet newspapers get into the spirit of the thing, whooping louder than ever, exposing evil conditions and conducting their own polls. Wet magazines send staff writers throughout the dry states to prove that they aren't dry at all. Perhaps it all doesn't mean very much and Congress may stay dry forever and ever—but all that noise is at least temporarily impressive.

Regarding a national referendum, leaders of the two factions have just made statements to this writer as follows:

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment:

"Of course it would be a good thing to have a national referendum. Any way of ascertaining the opinion of the people as an aid to the solution of any problem of government is a good thing. Why are the dries so afraid of it? I am convinced that the people of the country stand three to one against prohibition."

F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League:

"There is no sentiment in Congress for such a referendum or anywhere else as far as I can see. For one to be effective we would have to have a constitutional amendment and the wets can't get it. Why have a referendum on prohibition when we don't have it on any other question? We got the law into the constitution by orderly government and the wets can get it out the same way—if they are able."

RING OF STEEL ENCIRCLES OHIO PEN AS 4000 CONVICTS DEFY WARDEN

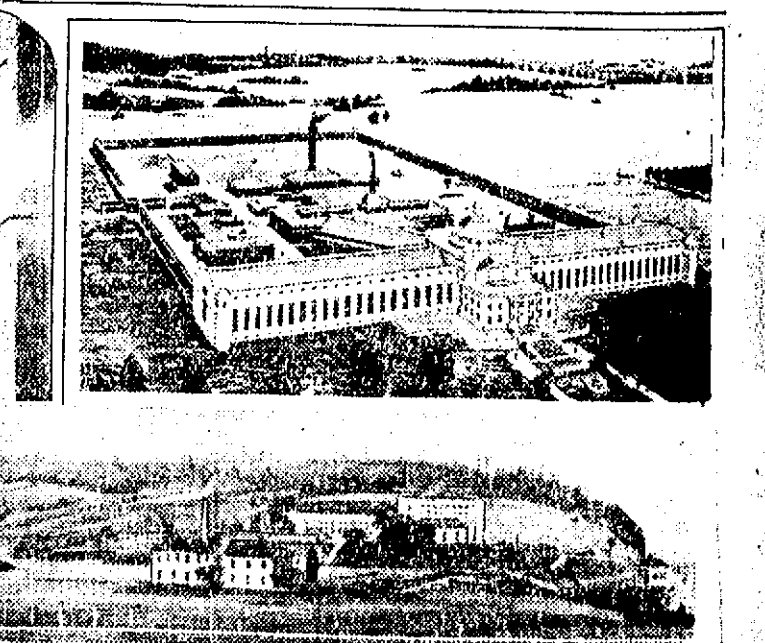

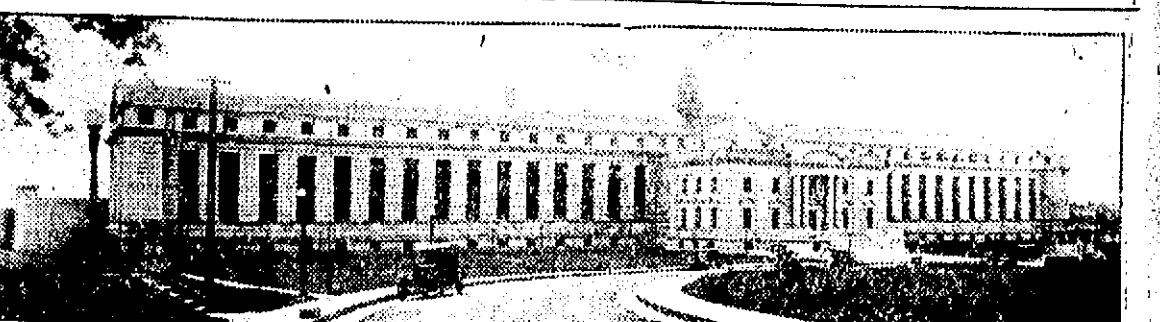

A ring of steel—machine guns and rifles in the hands of 1500 National Guardsmen—encircled the Ohio State Penitentiary at Columbus at 400 prisoners remained in control of the prison in a state of passive rioting, refusing to return to work after the disastrous fire in which 320 convicts burned to death and demanding that Governor Cooper remove Warden Preston E. Thomas.

Colonel R. S. Houbrecht, left, is in charge of the guardsmen, a squad of whom are shown above with rifles trained on cell blocks.

"Big Jim" Morton, Cleveland bank robber and one of the convict leaders, is shown at the right. Morton, a hero of the fire, sent out word that there would be no violence, but insisted that Warden Thomas be ousted.

PLIGHT OF PRISONS SHOWN BY FIGURES

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nine United States prisons now house twice as many inmates as they were built to hold: 12,259, compared to 6,678, normal capacity. These figures on federal penal institutions were compiled by Sanford Bates, superintendent of prisons:

U. S. Penitentiary	Normal Capacity	Population
Atlanta	1,580	3,854
U. S. Penitentiary
Leavenworth	1,640	3,379
Leavenworth Annex	1,200	1,603
U. S. Penitentiary, McNeil Island, Wash.	558	1,081
U. S. Industrial Reformatory, Chillicothe, Ohio	1,000	1,499
Federal Industrial Institution for Women, Alderson, W. Va.	500	424
Alderson road camp		82
Detention Hse., N.Y.	200	182
Camp Bragg, Fayetteville, N. C.		129
Total	6,678	12,259

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—

Death of more than 300 prisoners in the over-crowded Ohio state penitentiary puts bulging federal prisons in the spotlight.

Built in 1890 and designed to house 1,500 men, 4,300 were confined in the Ohio prison when it was swept by flames.

Not only are federal penitentiaries, in some instances, housing double normal capacities, but jails and reformatories in all parts of the country are being swamped with prisoners.

Increasing at a rate of more than 10 per cent a year, inmates in federal prisons total more than 12,000, an amount almost double the combined normal capacities of the institutions, Sanford Bates, superintendent of prisons, says:

In addition, Bates points out that more than 13,000 federal prisoners or 1,100 different jails await sentence or trial.

Attorney General Mitchell has told the senate judiciary committee that because of this congestion "further stimulating activities of prosecution under any law will get us into difficulties."

"To relieve conditions somewhat"

Bates says many inmates of federal institutions are being sent to government road camps and disciplinary barracks.

Completion of two farms in 1934 for narcotic addicts will provide for 2,500 persons. With this outlet, Bates expects a federal population in 1934 of 15,000 prisoners in excess of normal capacity.

Prohibition violators constitute great majority of the federal inmates with violation of the Dyer theft act and the Mann act off the other chief causes for imprisonment.

The number of prisoners in institutions of the country other than federal is placed at about 115,000.

In general, it is said that the population is below normal in most of New England and Rocky Mountain sections, but under any law will get us into difficulties.

A Prize for Parities

SOME blathered sent who didn't hate to see his name in the public prints ought to give a prize of some sort, any little token would suffice, for the major leagues prize money, or bonehead play, the contest could be divided into the months of the baseball calendar, and called the Boob of the Month Award or something like that.

To date the wonderful faux pas of Messrs. Koehig and Lazzeri of the Yankees holds the ranking position. In the opening game, with a nice double play in sight, Koehig took a bounder from the bat of Al Simmons and tossed to Lazzeri to force Mule Haas at second. Lazzeri then started completely off the field, thinking three men were out and that was all. It happened that only two were out, however, so Shortstop Koehig went about the business of retrieving the play. How did Shortstop Koehig go about retrieving the play? By chasing down Mule Haas, who already had been forced at second. Meantime, Al Simmons stroled down to second base, asked for a Murad and how's your uncle.

Press Box Breaks Out

THIS was the signal for the press box. Stories of pauses flew thick and fast.

"Do you remember the time?" was the theme of the meeting after that. Every scribe in the box did happen to remember another prize play.

Fred Merkle's failure to touch second base in the pennant race of 1908, a failure that cost a pennant for the Giants; Heinie Zimmerman's chasing Eddie Collins across home plate in a world series; John Anderson's stealing of second base when it already was occupied by these and other classics of the diamond were recalled.

Heinie All-Time Champ

HEINIE MUELLER, the former Cardinal outfielder, who built a lovely chicken coop in the cellar of his home and had to tear it down to get it outdoors, pulled a prize pansy in a game at Chicago some five years ago.

Donk was pitching for the Cards and Mueller had been instructed to watch the signals carefully. When a "slow ball" was called for, Mueller was to come in about 30 feet, and he was to back up against the fence when a fast one was signaled. The wise crowd in the bleachers got next to what Heinie was doing and started to sing out "Slow ball, slow ball, slow ball" whenever Mueller

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

McGraw traded George Fisher to the Cardinals for Wally Roettger, and in Fisher's first game for the Cardinals he got four hits out of five times up against three Cubs pitchers. Fisher is from Buffalo, where he hit .339 last season. Meantime Roettger, playing for the Giants, went hitless the same day, but it takes more than one swallow to make a man say "dish-rehshishion." Gus Sulz has been making a nice impression at first base for the Pirates, and whenever an infielder throws that ball to "Gus," some plate fan is sure to yell, "Another one in the Sulk." The seats for the Sharkey-Schmeling affair at Yankee Stadium will be all the way from $2 to $25. A truck manufacturer of Littleton, Col., has entered a couple of four-cylinder, front-wheel drive machines in the Indianapolis Decoration Day grind. Lester Sweetland of the Phils, who gave the Robbies three great big juicy hits in nine innings the other day, seems to have found control, which was all he needed to become one of the league's best left-handers.

moved in, and "Fast ball, fast ball, fast ball" when he retreated. The crowd's rhythmic chanting finally got on Heinie's nerves that with the bases loaded, he came in on a fast ball signal. The batter socked one far over Heinie's noble dome and that broke up the game.

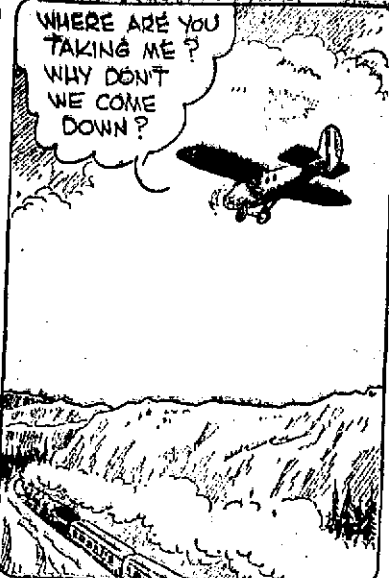

A Classic Reply

BRANCH RICKY asked Heinie about it after the game. "What's the matter, Heinie, didn't you get the fast ball signal?" Ricky asked his errant outfielder. "Sure," was Mueller's surprising reply. "I knew a fast ball was coming, but I thought I would cross that gang in the bleachers."

It happened that Dock overheard the conversation. "What chance has a guy like me got?" said Dock. "I'm only trying to fool the batters—and Mueller is out there fooling the crowd." Mueller, by the way, is the same guy who slammed a long drive and got put out because he ran past a baserunner who was waiting to see if the ball would be caught.

Champ Looper

Colors of Six Women To Show In Derby

Women stable owners again will make a strong bid for that ultimate success on the American track, first place in the Kentucky Derby. Six have entered mounts, which include two early favorites, Sarazen II and Desert Light.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 29.—(AP)—When the Kentucky Derby is run at historic Churchill Downs, May 17, more men will have to look to his laurels.

Six women have candidates nominated for the derby and one of them, Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt of New York, owns two of the outstanding early favorites, Sarazen II and Desert Light.

Zach's Wing String Snapped By Proxy

NEW YORK, April 29.—Old Tom Zachary won 12 straight ball games for the Yankees last year. He lost none. His list of consecutive victories really was 13, because he won the third game of the 1928 World Series between the Yanks and the St. Louis Cardinals. Now he has lost one.

Zachary pitched himself into a hole in a recent game with Washington, and Bob Shawkey, Yankee manager, wouldn't let him pitch himself out again.

Shawkey desperate for a victory, after the Yankees made a pedestrian start in the early games of the season, nervously removed Zachary when the Senators halted up to tie the score.

Roy Sherid was sent in there. A four hit followed. Then Gordon Rhodes went in. Another hit came. Meantime a Washington batsman, whom Zachary had placed on first, scored the winning run. Consequently Zachary was charged with the loss.

Youth Won 100 Races; Barred As Under Age

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP)—Verlyn Smith is just a little boy; he looks like a little boy, and that is why he is on the ground, instead of riding thoroughbreds to victory. Kentucky barred Smith because he was under age, taking a cue from Louisiana which found he was 14 instead of 16, the lowest riding age.

Smith, a jockey with a fine seat on a horse, possessing nerve and judge of pace, rode more than 100 horses to victory in Illinois last year, most of them in Chicago. He started at Fairmount, near East St. Louis, last year.

Emke's Double Is With Chicago Cubs

Chicago, April 29.—(AP)—Howard Emke made such a profound impression on the Chicago Cubs during the opening game of the World's series last fall that Manager Joe McCarthy has picked up a youngster who greatly resembles him.

He is Lonnie Warneke, a rangy rookie from Mt. Ida, Arkansas. Warneke was purchased last winter from the Alexandria, a club of the Cotton State league where he won 16 and lost 10 games. He is 21, six feet one and one-half inches tall, and weighs 180 pounds.

A MATTER OF DADS

Friend: "Why is it that your son rides in a car and you always go on the street car?"

Father: "Well, he has a rich father."

Winston-Salem, N. C.—"I grew up knowing about Black-Draught—it has been our standard standby all my life," says Mrs. P. H. Dunnagan, 238 Cleveland Avenue, this city. "My father and mother use Black-Draught, and after I got married and began house-keeping, I kept on using it in my home. I don't think there is anything like it."

"Whenever I am troubled with constipation, or bilious indigestion, I immediately begin to take Black-Draught, and soon am feeling like myself again. Sometimes I have spells of indigestion when I have heaviness in my chest and shortness of breath. Whenever I would eat meat, and some other things, I would almost smother. I found that taking Black-Draught relieved this entirely, and I am not bothered with indigestion any more."

"This summer, when I went on my vacation, I took Black-Draught with me. I recommend it to others, because I have found it to be so good, for in a day or two after I have taken Black-Draught, I feel splendid."

Thedford's BLACK-DRAUGHT for Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness

men from the east have candidates nominated for the 1936 classic. They are Mrs. Madeline H. West of New York, owner of Sir John, and Mrs. F. K. McLane of Monks, Md., owner of Chain Lightning.

Louisville will be represented by Mrs. Eva M. de Lozier, owner of Roll 'Em Down. Mrs. B. M. Evans of Chicago has nominated Cabildo and Mrs. E. G. Simmons of Fort Worth, Texas, is represented with Ulster Prince.

Of the women owners, the candidates of Mrs. Vanderbilt are outstanding. As a two-year-old Desert Light started sixteen times and was first five times, second six times and third three times, running out of the money but twice. He won $32,320 during the season and showed his foot on the Churchill Downs track by capturing the Kentucky Jockey club stakes. He was second in the junior championship at Aqueduct.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's Sarazen II faced the barrier eleven times, won four times, was third three times and unplaced four times. His wins included the Tremont stakes at Aqueduct and the Youthful stakes at Jamaica. He was third in the Great American stakes at Aqueduct and in the Saratoga special. He won $36,500 for the season.

The Fair stable of Mrs. Vanderbilt has sought derby honors for several years and makes a strong bid for 1936 laurels with its two fast chestnut colts.

The Dairy Cow

--Mother of Prosperity

The cow—one of the greatest blessings to the human race.

No nation or people has become highly civilized without her.

She produces the best human food on earth. She makes this health-building, strength-giving food from grass and coarse plants.

She provides not only food for her young and her keeper's family, but a surplus, besides, to sell.

Without her, agriculture is not permanent or prosperous; people are not healthy or happy.

Where the cow is kept and cared for, civilization advances, lands grow richer, homes grow better, debts grow fewer.

Truly, the Cow is the Mother of Prosperity.

Retains Decathlon Title

In the greatest all-around performance of his career, Bernard (Barney) Berlinger, 21-year-old Pennsylvania athlete, captured the decathlon championship of the Penn Relays at Philadelphia for the second straight year. Berlinger scored a total of 7460.609 points, a far greater performance than his 1934 record of 7298.798. In this layout Berlinger is shown winning the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet 6 inches (upper left); taking first in the shot put with a 48-foot toss (upper right); and clearing the bar at six feet one-half inch for victory in the high jump (below).

First Voyage To Honor War Dead Takes Nebraska Gold-Star Woman

OMAHA, Neb., April 29.—(AP)—Thirty-seven Nebraska mothers and widows will sail for France May 7, the first of the 6,000 gold star wearers whom the government will take across as its guests.

Three years will be required for all to make the trip to battlefields and cemeteries, hospital sites and places where concentration camps were located—sacred soil to these who lost sons and husbands in the World War.

Nebraska has 125 women who have sons or husbands buried in foreign cemeteries. Of these, 119 are mothers, five are widows and one is a step-mother.

Almost half of the eligible women did not care to make the trip. Many felt they were too old; others thought a visit to the graves of their dead would revive grief somewhat alleviated by time.

Of those who sail next month, two are widows, 35 are mothers.

The only Nebraska mother who lost more than one relative, Mrs. Anna Weyers of Gurley, whose two sons, Tony and Henry, are buried in the Meuse-Argonne cemetery, decided against making the trip.

In the party will be Mrs. Thomas E. Wood of Omaha, whose son sleeps in Suresnes cemetery. He was killed while serving with a searchlight crew, a few months after he had been graduated from a Washington electrical school.

Mrs. Mary Peck, of Omaha, despite her 70 years, will make the trip to a grave in which lies her son, killed eight days before the armistice.

Mrs. Sophie Lisenbee of Omaha is one of the war widows in the party. Her husband, a private in the 137th Infantry, died in the Argonne, and there he sleeps in the Meuse-Argonne cemetery.

Among Nebraska gold-star mothers and widows who will be first to visit graves of American soldiers in France are Mrs. Thomas E. Wood (left) who lost a son, and Mrs. Sophie Lisenbee, whose husband was killed in action.

The second delegation of war mothers and widows will go from Iowa on May 21.

The prosecution claimed he agreed to resign if he married her.

Three Suits At Marion Dismissed

Judge Rules Charges Were Brought Too Late

MARION, Ark., April 29.—(AP)—Sustaining a defense demurrer, Judge W. Bundy dismissed in Circuit court late Monday suits of Crittendon county against three of eight county officials and former officials which were based on an audit made several months ago by the state comptroller's office in Crittendon county affairs.

The auditors' report alleged overcharges, excess fees and other alleged irregularities.

The suits dismissed today were against W. B. Rhodes, former county treasurer; Claude oper, sheriff, and J. H. Nance, former county clerk. The issue was uniformly based on the state law requiring that county official shall turn back to the county all fees collected in excess of $5,000 per year.

R. V. Wheeler, attorney for the three men, demurred to the suits on the ground that under the law the county is required to file such suits within a three-year period. Dismissal of the three suits, he said tonight, disposes of all matters prior to January 1, 1927.

Mr. Rhodes was sued for $10,624.30, alleged to have been collected in excess of the $5,000 yearly fee limit, and Mr. Cooper for $3,683.75, alleged excess salary. The suit against Mr. Nance was for $3,306.66.

Cases also are pending against C. G. Barton, present county treasurer, and A. B. Carter, county clerk. A suit against J. A. Redding, circuit clerk, previously was settled out of court.

A Reputation

Emanuel Jackson, mule tender, appeared one morning on crutches. "Lawsy," exclaimed a friend, "Ah thought you was one of de bes' mule handlers in de business."

"So ah is," affirmed Emanuel proudly, "but we got a mule in dis mornin' dat didn't know ma reputation."—Rock Island Magazine.

Said a bald-headed man to a waitress bold:

"See here, young woman, my cocoa's cold." She scornfully answered, "I can't help that. If the blamed thing's chilly, put on your hat."

"Your eyes remind me of a bird." "Why?" "Because they continually flit from limb to limb."

"And your husband has a prosperous business, I suppose?"

"Oh, yes, he is taking in a lot of money. Only last night he told me a receiver was to be appointed to assist him."

"I can't marry him, mother. He's an atheist, and doesn't believe there's a hell."

"Marry him, my dear, and between us we'll convince him that he's wrong."

"I knew your first husband—a man—he died too soon."

"That's what my present husband says."

He (as they drove along a lonely road): You look lovelier to me every minute. Do you know what that's a sign of?

She: Sure. You're about to run out of gas.

Youth Killed In Automobile Crash

Two Are Held For Death of Erber Mangold

PARAGOULD, April 29.—Erber Mangold, aged 26, of Cardwell, Mo., was instantly killed late yesterday near Cardwell, 12 miles from here when he was hurled from an automobile to the pavement after another car had struck the car in which he was riding.

The accident occurred when a sedan occupied by James Pierce, 20, and Felix Hawkins, 30, both of Monette, crashed into the rear of the touring car in which Mangold was riding and which was driven by George Well, of Cardwell. Mangold's neck was broken when he struck the pavement. He is married and is survived by his widow and three small children.

Coroner T. J. Ridgion, of Kennett, Mo., said Pierce and Hawkins were under the influence of liquor, and when arrested each one accused the other of driving. Both are being held in jail at Kennett on a charge of driving while intoxicated and reckless driving.

Arch supports with a saw edge intended to cut bars of the jail were recently taken from a prisoner at Beaumont, Texas.

Nurse Gives Remarkable Endorsement

Tanlac may seem miraculous in its action to millions who ended stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as rheumatism, pains in the back, sides, joints and muscles from its use. It's the truth. I can drop of Tanlac a strong potent remedy, one while most other remedies are weak and ineffective. Mrs. H. Edwards, a nurse with much years' experience, is one who ought to know. She says: "In 19 years' active nursing I have found Tanlac without an equal as a remedy for stomach and liver troubles, and I can certainly give the most wonderful results in view of my long experience with this medicine. I had stomach trouble for years, no food, scarcely anything without suffering, never sleeping, always nervous and run down. But as soon as I began taking Tanlac, the troubles were ended and I was able to do my work with perfect safety. Many 'patent medicines' make glowing promises that may tempt you to try them, but remember Tanlac is a REAL medicine that lacks its claims with a guarantee. Do not accept a substitute. Pact Crowns Plan U. S. Asked in 1921

Aircraft Carrier Far Above America's Proposal

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—The London three-power naval limitations pact brings within sight of realization American proposals made nearly nine years ago.

Limitation of future naval construction within stabilized ratios.

Radical reduction of then existing or projected battle tonnage.

They were stated to the original naval limitations conference in Washington on November 12, 1921, by the American spokesman, Charles Evans Hughes.

And now, in London, specific figures given at Washington as to warship tonnage totals virtually have been reached.

There are exceptions. Totals in aircraft carrier tonnage are far above the original American proposal of 1921. In two other categories, however, battleships and submarines—important reductions below the Hughes proposals have been achieved.

The key to Mr. Hughes' proposals was the "5-5-3" ratio. That represented the theory of naval relativities upon which the United States offered to scrap more than $300,000,000 worth of warships under construction, completion of which would have made the American navy the most powerful in the world.

What Washington demanded as the price of abandonment of the attainment of that position in sea power was treaty-fixed naval equality with Great Britain and a ratio as of 5 to 3 between the American and Japanese fleets.

The London pact contemplates in the battleship category, abandonment of tonnage as the unit of measurement for ratio in favor of numbers of ships.

It contemplates immediate arrival at a "5-5-3" battleship status by scrapping five British, three American, and one Japanese existing vessels. The fleets thus would be left at 15-15-9 ships for a further period of six years.

The Washington negotiators found it impossible to bring France and Italy into the picture on any types of war vessels but battleships and aircraft carriers.

French plans for submarine and cruiser fleets and Italy's demand for full navy parity with France prevented.

The same factors balked the London 1930 effort on a five-power basis covering all types of fighting ships.

Under the London pact, the Japanese ratio varies with each category. Based on numbers, it is "5-3" in battleships.

In 8-inch gun cruisers, the Japanese ratio is "10-6-2" in 6-inch gun cruisers, it is "10-7" in destroyers, "100-70-3" in submarines, at parity.

For her whole fleet, including battleships, Japan attains a ratio of "100-63-6" instead of "5-3" as Hughes planned.

192 Lose Lives When Ship Sinks

CALCUTTA BENGAL, India, April 29.—(AP)—One hundred and fifty-two passengers, aboard the ship Calcutta, lost their lives when the boat sank in the river Jamuna in eastern Bengal, late Sunday, ship owners here said. Eighteen passengers aboard the ship were saved. The disaster occurred during a severe storm.

Business Houses Will Close For Bridge Opening

ARKADELPHIA, April 29.—Arkadelphia's interest in the celebration of the opening of the new Highway 67 bridge across the Ouachita river between this city and Malvern is reflected in a petition circulated here for the closing of all places of business from 10 a. m. until 4 p. m. May 7. Seventy-six stores and other places of business signed the paper and there is a general disposition here.

Stores and other places of business have agreed to close for the occasion when a large part of the population will attend the basket picnic at the bridge.

About the same number of business houses at Malvern have signed up to close, while Donaldson and Friendship also will close up to take part in the celebration. Governor Parnell and officials of the state highway department have accepted invitations to be present. Dr. C. H. Brough will be master of ceremonies.

Nashville Men Sign Up Berry Acreage

NASHVILLE, April 29.—More than 170 acres have been signed for strawberries in the vicinity of Nashville. Bert Johnson is behind the campaign for strawberry acreage and states that he hopes to secure a total of 400 acres for the Nashville fruit and truck belt. Mr. Johnson calls attention to the fact that the vicinity around Nashville is ideally adapted to the growing of strawberries. A few small patches have been grown successfully here for several years, but no large acreage has been planted.

Mr. Johnson pointed out the fact that the nearest strawberry acreage, excepting a few acres near Delight, is at Judsonia, and the next nearest commercial acreage at Hammond, La. He stated that 400 acres, in normal crop years, would produce 60 to 75 cars and in good years about 100 cars, thus assuring the growers a cash market. Murfreesboro, Belton, Tokio, Highland, Delight, Dierks and other nearby towns are attempting to procure enough acreage to insure carlot shipments.

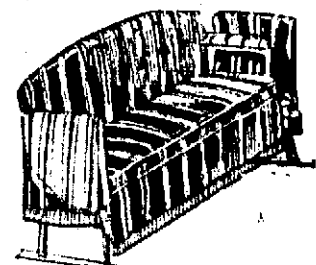

The United States has enough virgin timber to make a strip 70 miles wide from New York to San Francisco, it is claimed.
